3D-PRINTING COURSE

Summary

1.3D Printing uses software that slices the 3D model into layers (0.01mm thick or less in most cases). Each layer is then traced onto the build plate by the printer, once the pattern is completed, the build plate is lowered and the next layer is added on top of the previous one.

2.Layer by layer production allows for much greater flexibility and creativity in the design process. No longer do designers have to design for manufacture, but instead they can create a part that is lighter and stronger by means of better design. Parts can be completely re-designed so that they are stronger in the areas that they need to be and lighter overall.

3.3D Printing significantly speeds up the design and prototyping process. There is no problem with creating one part at a time, and changing the design each time it is produced. Parts can be created within hours. Bringing the design cycle down to a matter of days or weeks compared to months. Also, since the price of 3D printers has decreased over the years, some 3D printers are now within financial reach of the ordinary consumer or small company.

4. Typical manufacturing techniques are known as 'Subtractive Manufacturing' because the process is one of removing material from a preformed block. Processes such as Milling and Cutting are subtractive manufacturing techniques. This type of process creates a lot of waste since; the material that is cut off generally cannot be used for anything else and is simply sent out as scrap.

SUMMARY REPORT OF Technical Training MS-Office

The purpose of the MS Word is to allow the users to type and save documents. ... Microsoft word is used to save documents.

The documents can be copied to flash drive which serves as an external memory for your computer. This allows you to use the saved documents conveniently taking with you anywhere.

MS Excel is a spreadsheet programme developed by Microsoft in 1985, with the sole purpose of helping businesses compile all their financial data, yearly credit, and yearly debit sheets.

Fast forward to the future after 31 years, it is now the most commonly used program for creating graphs and pivot tables.

Making your presentation more interesting through the use of multimedia can help to improve the audience's focus.

PowerPoint allows you to use images, audio and video to have a greater visual impact.

These visual and audio cues may also help a presenter be more improvisational and interactive with the audience.
